Most people weren't able to finish all of their Christmas shopping Black Friday, but luckily for them, tomorrow is Cyber Monday. Cyber Monday is exactly like Black Friday, only it takes place on the internet. Its a day of big discounts and huge sales, so if you know where to look, you may be able to find deals just as good or better than you did on Friday. Try the following places for great Cyber Monday deals:

-Amazon.com has plenty of online sales, and they are listed here. Pay special attention to the Lightning Deals on the main page, as they will changing every half hour from now until the end of Cyber Monday.

-Walmart also has loads of good deals that can viewed here. Walmart decided Black Friday and Cyber Monday weren't enough, so they are promoting an entire Cyber Week on their website.

-This website has links to many online retailers, and includes coupon codes to use upon checkout.

-Finally we have cybermonday.com, which is powered and run by shop.org. This site has deals, coupons, and sales from over 700 online retailers.

There you have it: a quick guide to help set you on the right course for Cyber Monday. Good luck!
