

Easton residents discover human skull in creek by house

“On Wednesday afternoon at around 12:53 pm, Easton Police received a call for service from two Summer Street residents stating that they had located a human skull in the stream/creek by their house.

When police arrived on scene yesterday, they observed the item and determined it was likely a human skull.

A further search of the general area was conducted yesterday and that search has continued today. During today’s ongoing search, more human bones have been discovered. The search of the area will continue.

The bones will be forensically tested to attempt to identify them in the coming days and weeks.”-Bristol County District Attorney’s Office.
