- Have plenty of copies of your resume ready. You might need to prepare more than one version.
- Be prepared that some employers cannot accept hard copy resumes and will ask you to apply online. This is to comply with federal regulations about the way employers keep data on applicants, and to manage applicant data efficiently.
- Prepare a 20 to 30 second introduction to use with employers
- Prepare questions in advance:

Employers want employees who are proactive, thoughtful, and listen well. Make yourself stand out with smart questions

- Know the dress code. Each fair has its own styles and traditions. Some are business casual; some suggest or require interview attire.
